A letter from Chair Congresswoman Nikema Williams

In 2020 and 2021, Georgia Democrats made history. After delivering 16 electoral college votes for Joe Biden and Kamala Harris, flipping the only red-to-blue Congressional seat in the country with Rep. Carolyn Bourdeaux, and electing Jon Ossoff and Rev. Raphael Warnock to secure the Democratic Senate majority, it is no exaggeration to say that Georgia voters permanently changed the trajectory of this country.

Looking back to November 3 and January 5, it's easy to speculate that these wins were the result of a miracle, a well-timed news cycle, or one candidate or campaign. But let's be clear — Georgia Democrats and organizers across our state had been building towards this moment for years. These victories are neither a fluke nor simply demographic destiny, but instead the result of years of building and a relentless commitment to the vision of uplifting every voter, protecting every vote, and organizing year round to empower the diverse coalitions that make up Georgia.

When I took office as chairwoman, Georgia Democrats had just finished the closest election in history, and as a party, we knew it would take new, strategic planning and early investment to close the gap. Together, we used the lessons from 2018 to build the strong, year-round organization that would turn Georgia blue, empower a diverse coalition of voters, and ultimately treat every day like Election Day. It worked — and now we have set a model for battleground states everywhere.

Georgia Democrats are positioned to build on our success; grow our investments in organizing, voter protection, and coalition-building; and change Georgia for good.

From the beginning, we said that the road to victory in 2020 would run right through Georgia. This report tells the story of those victories. Now, with Senator Warnock's seat along with the entire statewide slate on the ballot in 2022, Georgia Democrats are positioned to build on our success; grow our investments in organizing, voter protection, and coalition-building; and change Georgia for good.

Thank you to every organizer, volunteer, supporter, activist, committeeperson, staff member, and longtime Party member who made a bright blue Georgia possible. This work is never done alone, and our victories stand on the shoulders of countless individuals who made this possible. Most importantly, thank you to Georgia voters — all of this is because of you.

Chair Congresswoman Nikema Williams

Executive Summary from Executive Director Scott Hogan

Friends:

Throughout this report, Georgia Democrats have outlined the specific strategic choices made from the onset of Chairwoman Williams' term to build the organization that would turn Georgia blue. While how we implemented those decisions were specific to and strategic for Georgia, we highlight four building blocks that are essential for every battleground state in 2022:

- Building a year-round organizing program. DPG built a strong year-round field operation and recruited a record number of candidates to meet voters across the state where they were.
- Committed outreach and engagement with a wide and diverse coalition across the state. DPG conducted targeted outreach towards the different communities that make up Georgia, including the African American, Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI), and Latinx communities.
- Strengthening voter turnout. DPG focused on expanding its electoral coalition by engaging low-propensity voters and non-voters, including voters that typically do not see engagement from either party.
- Protecting every vote. DPG invested heavily in helping every voter cast their ballot safely, including voter outreach, resource compilation and communication, and litigation.

At every stage of the last three years, these building blocks were central to how we did our work, from investing in special elections early in 2019 to creating the strongest voter protection program in Democratic history. As you read this report, you'll see how these elements took shape, how Georgia Democrats kept our focus, and how we used them to win.

As we plan ahead for 2022, the work

starts now. The lesson from Georgia is that we can no longer afford for state parties and campaigns to wait to build up their infrastructure or postpone strategic decision-making until the months before Election Day in November. Especially as Republicans across the country step up their anti-voting agenda, we must fight hard, build fast, and present a strong, strategic front ready to fight for victory across the country in 2022. We need to continue investing early in organizing programs. We need to continue relationship-building across diverse coalitions. We need to continue expanding voter protection investments and efforts. We need to continue broadening the Democratic electorate.

More than ever before, the work of 2020 and 2021 has made clear that we are all in this fight together. Thank you to every person who was a part of these victories, and to everyone continuing the hard work of making change and electing strong Democrats who represent our values. We are with you every step of the way.

In Georgia’s 2021 municipal elections, Democratic candidates flipped 48 seats in DPG-targeted races – from mayorships to city council posts – compared to just 6 GOP flips, for a net gain of 40+ Democratic seats statewide. Two notable mayoral flips were in Warner Robins and McDonough, a Middle Georgia city and Atlanta suburb, respectively, both of which elected the first woman or Black mayor to lead the city. Democrats also flipped mayoral seats in Cairo, Stone Mountain, Sylvester, and Hampton, and fought off Republican opponents in cities like Brunswick and Forest Park. The 48 seats flipped spanned across 25 counties in metro and rural areas, including Ben Hill, Berrien, Brooks, Chatham, Clarke, Cobb, Cook, Crisp, DeKalb, Dougherty, Fulton, Grady, Gwinnett, Heard, Henry, Houston, Jackson, Jefferson, Lanier, Meriwether, Mitchell, Oconee, Troup, Walton, and Worth. Throughout the municipal election season, the Democratic Party of Georgia made nearly 108,000 calls and sent nearly 203,000 texts to voters across the state to get out the vote in these targeted races.

Engage Diverse Coalitions

Knowing that a broad coalition was needed to flip seats blue, we sought to expand our outreach to an even more diverse set of Georgia voters. Throughout 2020 and 2021, we conducted targeted outreach towards the different communities that make up Georgia, including African American, Latinx, AAPI, Women, Veterans and Military Families, Faith, Youth, Disability, LGBTQ, and Sportsmen and Sportswomen coalitions.

Tailored Outreach

Our coalitions team hosted regular virtual outreach events to engage with different constituencies throughout the general election, pivoting to both virtual and in-person events during the runoff elections, including:

- Daily phone bank and canvass launch events with high-level surrogates, celebrities, and local leaders representing different constituencies to energize volunteers ahead of community-specific and in-language voter outreach.
- Coalition-specific virtual events, including Black Men and Women Lead, a conversation series with local African American leaders; Small Business Roundtables with minority small business owners; and Faith Leaders Roundtables with local community leaders representing a variety of faiths and constituencies.
- Large-scale, COVID-safe weekend events to distribute resources and encourage voting among constituency groups, including Pasado to the Polls, a weekly voter mobilization event for Latinx voters; the New Americans International Festival, an event to celebrate the diverse cultures that make up Georgia; a Virtual Gospel Concert; and Roll Out the Bollywood Red Carpet, a festival to celebrate the AAPI community.

In-Language Voting Resources

Beginning in 2019, we invested in creating voting resources in various languages spoken by Georgia voters in addition to English, in order to ensure that language was not a barrier in getting information needed to cast a ballot. In-language resources included:

- Canvassing materials distributed in several languages.
- The Voter Protection Hotline, which was available in 3 languages during the primaries and expanded to 7 languages by September 2020 – English, Spanish, Mandarin, Vietnamese, Korean, Hindi, and Urdu.
- In-language phone banks throughout the general and runoff elections in several languages. At its height during the runoff elections, in-language phonebanking resources were available to volunteers in 16 languages.

Engage Diverse Coalitions

Dedicated Staff

We prioritized dedicated staff for coalition-based voter engagement and outreach during the general and runoff elections, including:

- A dedicated Coalitions Director during the general election who oversaw organizing and events for several different constituencies, and numerous Deputy Coalitions Directors responsible for engagement with volunteers and voters in each distinguished constituency.
- A Coalitions Advisor during the runoff election and three Constituency Media Directors, including a Director of African American Media, Director of Latinx Media, and Director of AAPI Media, all of which led earned and paid media strategy and operations engaging key coalitions.

VOTER TURNOUT % AMONG YOUNGER VOTERS

Increased Investment

We invested heavily in reaching specific constituencies with in-language mail and ads in Spanish, Korean, Mandarin, Hindu, Urdu, and Vietnamese, as well as in African American media outlets, including:

- More than $1.5+ million in coalition-specific, in-language targeted mail as well as radio, digital, and print ads during the general election.
- More than $2.75+ million in coalition-specific, in-language targeted mail as well as radio, digital, and print ads during the runoff election.

Strengthen Voter Turnout

All of our efforts over the last three years – from beginning our organizing program early and engaging with voters in all elections year round, to growing our voter protection program into a robust operation, to the sincere, strategic investments in outreach to grow and diversify the Democratic coalition – were in service of our fourth strategic pillar: turnout. We knew that increased turnout, especially among a more diverse swath of voters and voters who had not been as engaged in the electoral process, was Democrats’ best chance to capture a larger share of the electorate.

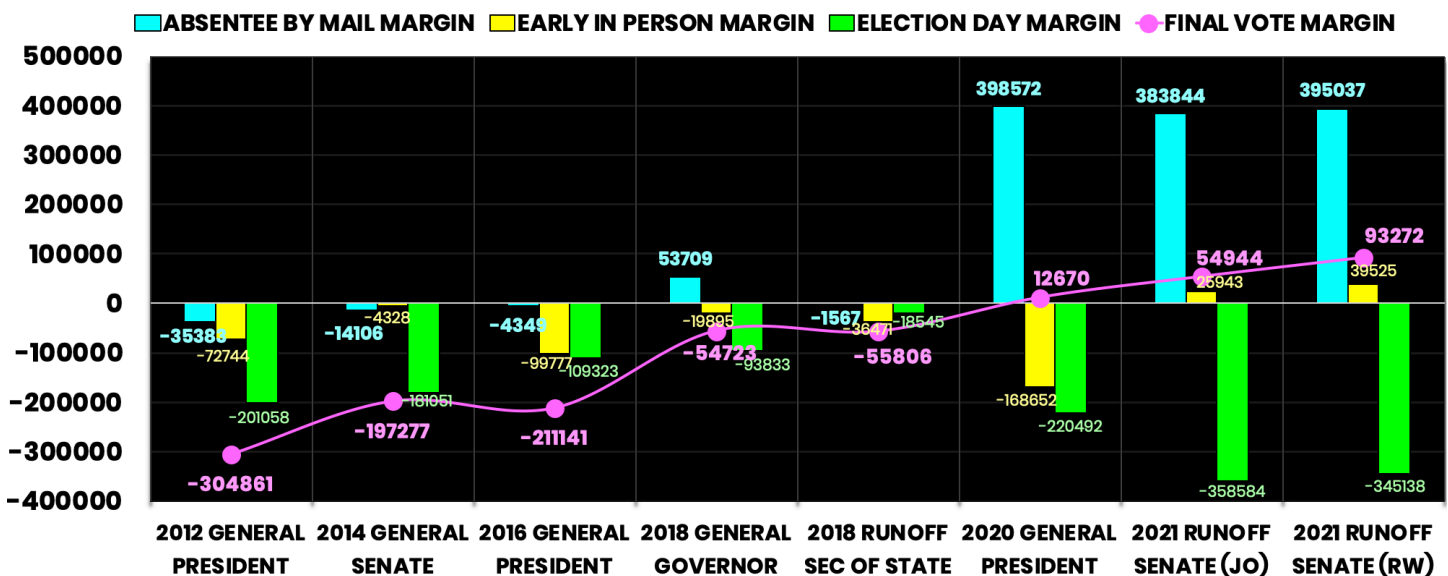

Voter Outreach Highlights

- Over 50 million voter contact attempts during the general & runoff elections
- Over 2 million conversations with voters
- Almost 25 million phone calls
- Over 3 million doors knocked

Leading up to the 2020 cycle, DPG worked with District Chairs in all 14 of Georgia's Congressional districts to build a robust, organized system of county committees. With this groundwork laid, DPG had a built-in infrastructure of grasstops leaders, volunteers, and activists in all 159 counties during the 2020 cycle. Because of our network of prepared, organized county committees in every part of the state, we could call on volunteers at a moment's notice and quickly mobilize.

“County committee members and officers are the backbone of our Democratic infrastructure throughout the state. As elected volunteers, they know their communities better than anyone. Thanks to their preparation, their adaptability, and their true community organizing, DPG was able to activate volunteers and turn out voters in every corner of the state. The 2020 cycle showed that with financial and staff investment, strong county committees can turn Georgia blue.”

- Sarah Todd, Vice Chair of Congressional District Chairs and County Party Liaison

Protect Every Vote

In 2019, the Voter Protection Team identified Coordinators in every county to recruit and train local volunteers ahead of the 2020 primary and general elections and begin year-round engagement and training with local boards of elections. By the primary campaign, we had five staff on the Voter Protection Team and 4,000 dedicated Voter Protection volunteers in place across the state. By the general election, our Voter Protection Staff grew to 20 and volunteers grew to 10,000.

Voter Education

The Voter Protection Team worked in coordination with the Organizing, Digital, and Communications Teams for a massive vote-by-mail education campaign, including:

- Large-scale texting campaign targeting 1+ million voters with vote-by-mail resources ahead of the primaries.
- Hosting a series of voter education events, trainings.
- Creation of a dedicated Voter Protection website and resource center ahead of the general election utilized by progressive groups across Georgia.

Hotline

The Voter Protection Hotline served as a one-stop-shop for Georgia voters in the primaries, general election, and runoffs who had questions about the voting process or encountered issues they needed help resolving. The hotline:

- Was available in 3 languages – English, Spanish, and Korean – by the primaries, and fully operational in 7 languages – English, Spanish, Korean, Mandarin, Hindi, Urdu, and Vietnamese – by September 2020.
- Answered more than 130,000 voter calls by the end of the election cycle.
- Had staff equipped to answer questions related to voting deadlines, vote-by-mail, early voting in-person, election day voting, absentee ballot curing, provisional ballots, precinct changes, and more.

Ballot Curing

The Voter Protection Team worked in coordination with the Organizing and Digital Teams for a massive absentee ballot-curing effort to ensure every absentee vote was counted. This effort:

- Had 3 dedicated staff coordinating thousands of Voter Protection volunteers.
- Contacted Democratic voters via phone and text, as well as through door-knocking after the general election, whose absentee ballots were rejected to help “cure” them so they would be accepted by the state.
- Saw a 58% cure rate among our target cure universe during the runoff elections, compared to just 45% among our non-target universe.

Protect Every Vote

Advocacy

The Voter Protection and Legal Teams engaged consistently and strategically with state officials to ensure free and fair elections and to protect every vote. The DPG:

- Advocated for the GA Secretary of State to mail absentee ballot applications to every active registered Georgia voter for the primary, giving voters greater choice on how they could safely cast their ballot during the COVID pandemic.
- Ensured every early primary vote would count even as the election was postponed (twice) due to COVID.
- Guaranteed tech support for voting machines at every precinct during the general and runoff elections.
- Pushed for expanded use of absentee ballot drop boxes during the primary and general elections, as well as improvements to the GA SOS's absentee ballot online portal.

Monitoring

The Voter Protection Team implemented a boiler room hub to triage incoming information from volunteers fanned across the state, including:

- Poll watchers during the primary, general, and runoff elections who reported up issues at precincts during early in-person voting and election day voting.
- Observers to monitor the processing of absentee ballots during the general and runoff elections.

Litigation

The Legal Team filed several emergency motions and either brought or defended against various lawsuits to ensure every Georgian's vote was counted. Legal wins included:

- During the primary election, extending the time voters had to cure rejected absentee ballots and provisional ballots by several days.
- Forcing several counties to turn over lists of voters who cast provisional ballots so DPG could begin cure efforts.
- Extending hours on election day at precincts that opened late or faced issues, with a 100% success rate.
- Fending off several GOP-led challenges to the voter rolls ahead of the runoff elections.

2022 Plans

The Democratic Party of Georgia (DPG) has committed to creating a permanent party infrastructure to build on our recent successes and ensure that we are expanding our electorate, maintaining our community relationships, empowering voters to navigate suppressive voter laws, and harnessing the power of volunteers and emerging technology to communicate with our supporters year-round. In 2022, our goal is to compete everywhere and win up and down the ticket, including the Senate race, the Governor's race, and down-ballot races across the state.

Our 2022 Plans

Bolstering our year-round organizing program. DPG will continue to build on the strong year-round field operation we launched in 2019, which will allow us to recruit a record number of candidates and continue to meet voters across the state where they are. DPG currently has an Organizing Director, Deputy Organizing Director, and Digital Organizing Director committed to this work.

Committed outreach and engagement with a wide and diverse coalition across our state. The DPG will continue our targeted outreach towards the different communities that make up Georgia, including the African American, Asian American and Pacific Islander (AAPI), and Latinx communities. For the first time ever in an off-year, in addition to a Political Director, DPG has a Deputy Coalitions Director for African American outreach, a Deputy Coalitions Director for AAPI outreach, and a Deputy Coalitions Director for Latinx outreach.

Protecting every vote. The DPG will keep investing heavily in helping every voter cast their ballot safely. We will need to significantly ramp up our voter protection efforts, which includes intense voter outreach and education, advocacy for better laws, and litigation. Right now, our Voter Protection Director leads a robust team of committed volunteers, with plans to greatly expand Voter Protection staff closer to elections.

Strengthen voter turnout. DPG will continue to expand its electoral coalition and promote voter turnout by increasing our visibility among our Democratic base as well as low-propensity voters and non-voters. This effort involves widening our reach through our digital platforms, including our email list, social media channels, and texting.

Thank You

“These victories are a testament to the power and resilience of our democracy and to the passion and grit of tens of thousands of Georgia volunteers. Together we turned the tide and made American history. Thank you!”

Sen. Jon Ossoff

“The Democratic Party of Georgia’s commitment to mobilizing voters in every corner of the state – including our smaller cities and more rural communities – was a key component of Democrats’ winning 2020 strategy in Georgia.”

Rep. Sanford Bishop

“Georgia did not just make history with the 2020 and runoff elections: we changed the course of this pandemic by ramping up vaccine distribution, securing direct payments for folks whose jobs were lost and aid for small businesses struggling to survive, and we set our nation on a path to recovery. Still, we have more work to do to ensure that as we emerge, we build an economy with opportunities for all Georgians. As we focus on that work in the U.S. Senate with the Democratic Majority, I know the Democratic Party of Georgia is already putting in the hours to once again make history in 2022.”

Sen. Rev. Raphael Warnock

“Georgia Democrats put in the work to ensure one of the most important victories in Georgia’s history. I’m grateful for their tireless efforts in the 13th Congressional District and beyond.”

Rep. David Scott

“Flipping the 7th District, taking back the Senate, and winning the White House would not have been possible without the diverse communities in Georgia’s 7th District, and I thank the state party for all their help in reaching out and engaging those communities.”

Rep. Carolyn Bourdeaux

“Our state helped change the course of our nation’s history, but it could not have happened without a strong state Democratic party working to help Georgians exercise their sacred right to vote.”

Rep. Hank Johnson

“The Democratic Party of Georgia has been an ally and a resource since day one. From organizing our communities to protecting our voters, we’re stronger for the efforts of Georgia Democrats.”

Rep. Lucy McBath

“Democrats were victorious this past election cycle thanks to hundreds of dedicated staff and organizers and thousands of volunteers, whose hard work over multiple election cycles led to the unprecedented turnout we saw across Georgia.”

Rep. Nikema Williams
